Section II Taxable Income

Article (10): Net Profit:

The taxable commercial and industrial profits shall be determined on the basis of the revenues generated through all commercial, industrial and service operations of all types conducted by the taxpayer, including the compensation and other revenues earned by the taxpayer, as well as the profits earned as a result of the liquidation that took place during the tax year, less all deductible costs in accordance with the provisions of this law. The net profit is determined on the basis of the income statement prepared in accordance with the accounting standards adopted in the Republic, provided that the tax base is determined in accordance with the provisions of this law.

Article (11): Partnerships:

If related persons have set conditions for their commercial or financial transactions other than those operative among non-related persons, either to reduce the tax base or to shift the tax burden from a taxable person to an exempt or non-taxable one, the Authority is entitled to determine the taxable profit on the basis of the neutral price. The Executive Regulations of this law shall determine the methods of calculating the neutral price.

Article (12): Long-term Contracts:

- a) The tax base for long-term contracts is determined on the basis of the rate of the executed portion of each contract during the tax year. The executed rate of each contract is determined on the basis of the actual cost of the works implemented until the end of the tax year prorated to the total estimated cost of the contract.
- b) The profit of the contract is determined by the difference between the contract value and its cost estimates. And the estimated profit of the contract during each tax year is determined by the percentage of the profit estimated according to the precedent paragraph prorated to that executed during the tax year; provided that the contract profit is adjusted at the end of the tax year in which the contract was completed. Such profit shall be calculated on the actual revenues of the contract less the actual costs after deducting the previously estimated profits.
- c) If the closing accounts of the tax year, in which the contract is completed, concluded a loss, such loss shall be deducted from the profits of the previous tax period (s) specified for completion of the contract, provided that the deduction does not exceed the contract profit during such period, and the tax must be re-calculated on this basis and the taxpayer shall recover the paid amount in excess of that.
- d) If the loss arising out of the contract execution exceeds the limits referred to in the previous paragraph, the outstanding losses shall be carried forward to the subsequent years, according to the provisions of article (19) herein, provided that losses shall not be carried forward beyond five years. The executive regulation shall determine the rules required to calculate the net profit or losses of the long-term contracts.
- e) A "long-term contract" means a manufacturing, processing or construction contract, or performance of the associated services thereof, carried out by an establishment for third parties based on a fixed value, and the implementation of which requires more than one tax period.

Article (13): Deductible Costs:

- a) The taxable net profit is determined on the basis of the gross profit after deducting all costs and expenses needed to realize and maintain such profits. The deductible costs and expenses must be:
1. Related to the commercial, industrial or service activity and essential for carrying out the activity.
 2. Real and supported by documents, except for costs and expenses which, customarily, do not need supporting documents to prove their relevance to that activity, provided that such costs and expenses shall not exceed 2% of the net profit based on the principles provided for in the executive regulation.
- b) The following costs and expenses are deductible:
- 1- The rental value of real estate leased by the taxpayer for the purpose of undertaking its various activities, except for the rental value based on Financial lease contracts.
 - 2- Depreciations pursuant to the provisions of article (16 and 17) of this law.
 - 3- Fees and taxes paid by the firm, except for the tax paid by the taxpayer according to this law.
 - 4- Zakat on trade and Industry paid by the taxpayer under Zakat Act.
 - 5- Donations and subsidies paid to non-governmental organizations and associations registered with the competent authorities with their headquarters located in the Republic; provided that the value of such donations and subsidies does not exceed 5% (Five Percent) of the net profit. Donations and subsidies, whatever their value is, for building mosques, shelters or for the government, the Yemeni army, schools, public hospitals, dams, public roads and drinking water projects, as well as donations and subsidies for charitable or humanitarian purposes recognized by the government shall be deemed as costs.
 - 6- Insurance premiums paid by the taxpayer to local insurance companies based on contracts to cover the assets, operations and the personnel of the establishment.
 - 7- Salaries, remuneration and the like, medical treatment expenses paid to the personnel, and the social insurance contributions paid by employer to the Public Corporation of Social Insurances in favor of its employees, as well as the contribution of the employer in any retirement, saving or any other Fund established by the employer in accordance with the applicable laws to serve as severance or pension, or any other Funds that may be established for social and medical Solidarity purposes.
 - 8- Travel expenses relevant to the activities of the establishment.
 - 9- Losses incurred by the taxpayer as a result of substantiated incidents of theft, embezzlement or damages, provided that the taxpayer has not been compensated for.

- 10- Foreign Exchange differences.
- 11- Proceeds and commissions on loans obtained by the taxpayer from a third party for its operations, subject to the provisions of article (15) of this law.
- 12- Share of the subsidiary out of the expenditures of the headquarters located outside the Republic, provided that such expenses shall not include the salaries paid for any operations performed in Yemen, proceeds, or royalties and that the deductible expenditures shall not exceed 2% (two percent) of the taxable profits realized in the Republic.
- 13- Membership remuneration and allowances received by Chairmen and members of the boards of directors.
- 14- Training expenses of the personnel in accordance with the conditions set out in the executive regulation.
- 15- Financial penalties related to the operations of the establishment.

c)

1. The taxpayer who hires workers or employees for permanent posts for the first time after enforcement of this law may claim additional discount calculated as follows:
 - 50% of the salaries of these workers or employees for the first year of employment;
 - 40% of the salaries of these workers or employees for the second year of their employment;
 - 30% of the salaries of these workers or employees for the third year of their employment;
 - 20% of the salaries of these workers or employees for the fourth year of their employment; and
 - 10% of the salaries of these workers or employees for the fifth year of their employment.However, such additional deduction shall not result in any tax loss.
2. For the purpose of applying the provisions of this article, an employee or worker shall mean each natural person connected with the establishment as an employee whether based on an employment contract or appointment resolution, provided that the minimum working hours are not less than 35 hours per week.
3. To acquire the right to claim additional deduction in accordance with clause (1) of this paragraph, the following conditions shall be met:
 - The taxpayer maintains books and accounts on regular basis; and
 - The taxpayer submits the monthly tax declarations on the salaries and wages, and pays the due tax on the specified legal dates accompanied by the list of the new workers or employees together with their employment contracts, as well as those workers or employees whose labor contracts have been terminated.
4. The additional deduction provided in item (1) of this paragraph may not be claimed for the following cases:

- Hiring or recruitment of workers or staff not included in the records of insurance and pensions;
- Hiring or recruitment of non-Yemeni workers or staff;
- Recruitment of foreign companies operating in the oil and gas field, their subcontractors, as well as recruitment with the enterprises and companies operating in mining field which are subject to the provisions of Section IV, Chapter III of Part I of this Law.
